What is it?

Overwhelmed or crazy busy?

Open doors is a program for any size business that wants to open doors or build pathways to grow their business. This is a people-oriented program designed to help your human resources perform to their optimal levels through experiential learning on topics like emotional intelligence, leadership development, communication, relationship building, and team dynamics to name a few. No matter what your challenges are, we can deliver open doors solutions to meet your needs. It is a customized program that promotes "action" learning.

We need to recognize and accept the value that everyone gives to the organization!

How do we deliver?

We deliver this program through a series of workshops and team coaching sessions that are based on action learning techniques. The program is menu-driven based on your specific needs and is designed to minimize disruptions to your business.

Is it new?

It is new to EE Consulting & Coaching Services' portfolio but not new to this generation of training effectiveness. Action learning has been in existence for many years but many companies didn't embrace the concept until recently. We know by experience that this is the best learning method available today because we've seen results that are phenomenal. Our follow-up coaching sessions to each workshop ensures individuals know what they need to do to apply their learning in the workplace. They learn to take ownership for their development and to apply themselves daily.

What else can I expect from this program?

We offer DISC assessments as part of this program. The DISC assessment has been in existence for many years measuring a persons ability to adapt to differing environments and apply behaviors they are born with in being the best they can be. These assessments have been validated over and over again for accuracy. We also utilize the Myers-Briggs assessments for those companies and individuals that want to learn about their inherent ways of thinking and how they utilize information.

Learning goes beyond technology. It goes beyond theory too!

How does team building and/or a retreat fit this program?

This program allows for optional team building and retreats for employees you feel need to be energized or who need to build better internal relationships. Our programs are designed to be fun, educational, and to be talked about long after the event occurs. This piece of the program allows action learning to be taken to the next level so employees WANT to make your business successful because they then see how their contribution adds to the overall business profitability through team dynamics. Many companies hire us to facilitate strategy sessions in order to keep everyone focused and to make necessary progress to get you on your way to meeting your goals!
